U.A.E. Terminal Takeover Extends to 21 Ports

NewsMax.com Wires

Monday, Feb. 27, 2006

WASHINGTON -- The controversial takeover of U.S. ports is much greater in scope than has been widely reported. Twenty-one ports would come under control of a United Arab Emirates government-owned company, not six.

The Bush administration says it will accept an offer by DP World to submit to a second — and broader — U.S. review of potential security risks in its deal to take over significant operations at American ports. DP World would assume control of the facilities from British-owned Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Co.

According to United Press International, P&O is the parent company of P&O Ports North America, which leases terminals for the import and export and loading and unloading and security of cargo in 21 ports, 11 on the East Coast, ranging from Portland, Maine to Miami, Florida, and 10 on the Gulf Coast, from Gulfport, Miss., to Corpus Christi, Texas, according to the company's Web site.
