President Bush is pushing his weight around all over the world. Nation after nation is concerned that it will be next. He disclaims the idea that he is building a New World Order according to his dictates – or his handlers. However, it is obvious that America is violating every principle this nation was built upon. Our Founding Fathers stated that we should never get ourselves caught up in entangling alliances with the Europeans; or for that matter, any part of the world. Contact for commercial trade – yes; but no entangling alliances that would erode our freedoms.

The subversive Council on Foreign Relations was invited into the White House and State Department by Franklin Delano Roosevelt as advisors in the late 1930s and early 1940s. Ever since that time there has been a constant swing in the opposite direction. They have gotten the United States entangled in World Government building. Any nation that did not go along with their goals and purposes has been targeted for overthrow. Iraq was no different.

Syndicated columnists Charley Reese recently wrote: “It would pay us all to remember that the war in Iraq is both unjust and illegal. We launched a war of aggression against a country that was not attacking us, did not have the means to attack us, and had never expressed any intention of attacking us.

“Thus, America’s attack against Iraq is the same as Japan’s attack against the United States in 1941 and Germany’s attack against Poland in 1939. We were the aggressors pure and simple, and for whatever the REAL reason we attacked Iraq, it was not to save America from any danger, imminent or otherwise. ...

“This illegal, unjust and unprovoked war against a sovereign country is what has alienated the rest of the world. This alienation runs deep and will have very long-term implications. The whole push of the best people in the bloody 20th century was an attempt to find ways to avert wars of aggression. The United States was one of the leaders in that drive. All of that was chucked on the ash heap of history by George W. Bush’s decision to invade Iraq and overthrow its government.

“No sane leader of any nation in the world can trust America any more. We have demonstrated that if we desire to attack a nation, we will FABRICATE the excuse and attack it, despite international conventions and international opinion. We have demonstrated that a nation need not provoke us or threaten us to become a victim of our aggression. We have said to the world that the only law we respect is the law of the jungle, and that MIGHT MAKES RIGHT. That's why so many people consider us to be a rogue nation and a threat to world peace.

"The sad part is that the American people have been so sheep-like. They believed the blarney about weapons of mass destruction, even the stupid parts such as Bush claiming Iraq's tiny little drone airplanes could attack the United States.

"When those lies were exposed, they believed that the war was justified by Saddam Hussein's cruelty. We've slept with many bloody dictators, including Saddam. Now they believe that we went there to spread democracy.

"That's a bunch of hooey. The present interim government is corrupt to the core. The British Broadcasting Corp. did a lot of interviews with Iraqis, and not one of them mentioned wanting democracy or freedom. They all said they want a strong government that can provide security and end corruption.

"Given the world's distrust and alienation, how do you think the Bush administration is going to garner support to stop the proliferation of nuclear weapons? DO YOU THINK RUSSIA, CHINA, INDIA and other countries love us? Do you think even the Europeans will not try to WEAKEN OUR GLOBAL MONOPOLY on the use of force? ...

"Don't take too much comfort in the fact that we are, at the moment, the 800-pound gorilla. Everybody hates the gorilla and will try to do everything to weaken it.

"Given the venality and incompetence of our government, the shaky state of our economy, the apathy of our people and the decadence of our culture, I don't think we'll be king of the jungle for very much longer."

President Bush's father stated that the first Iraqi war in 1990 might be the start of the New World Order. This is their real goal for the second Iraqi war and spreading it to other Muslim nations (Daniel 11: 40-45). This aggression by our Federal Government will ultimately "backfire." Russia and China are the sworn enemies of the U.S. Eventually, Bush will hear saber rattling from both. America will find herself in deep trouble. No one will come to her aid. Read Daniel 12: 7b.

In much love,

David J. Smith
